Hints For The Amateur Gardener

By Harry Nelson

Through an arrangement with Harry Nelson, Los Angeles gardening expert, the Herald will offer each week a timely article on the proper planting and cultivation of seasonable flowers. Mr. Nelson will answer all questions relating to gardening, either through this column or by direct communication. Persons who wish prompt and personal answers to their questions must enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope with their communication to insure a reply. Questions may be sent to this office to be forwarded to Mr. Nelson.

Outside of stressing the need of water for your gardens these days, there is little to say in the way of gardening. It might be that you would like to have notes on various flowers or shrubs. Perhaps the histories of certain plants would be of interest, but so far I have no way of telling for sure. Instead, I will caution you to be careful how you water. Do it in the morning, if possible, so the plants will not have wet feet at night. During the hot summer months, it is better to water in the evening, but you must realize how you would feel if you were to put on wet night clothes at this season, to sleep in. Your plant is every bit as sensitive to wet feet as cold as you are, and your success will be assisted greatly by treating it as carefully as you would yourself.

Water Cure

There is one phase of gardening that is somewhat of interest and might need explaining. This concerns your house plants. Most plants, grown in the house need sunlight, but it is not well to put them directly in it. A diffused light is much better. Turn the plants each week so that a new side will be presented to the light. If the leaves turn yellow, it means they are either getting too much water or not enough. The best way to tell is to turn the pot upside down and tap it gently on some hard surface such as a table, keeping two fingers close to the base of the plant. The appearance of the soil will tell you whether you are giving too much water or not. If, as the case usually is, you are not giving enough, fill a basin with water and set the pot down in it. The water should come up about half an inch on the pot. Leave the plant there overnight. By doing this once a month or less we will be helping the plants greatly. Putting water in the pot does not always mean that the entire potful of roots is getting wet. In most cases it stays very near the surface, leaving the middle and bottom sections of the pot dry.

Bonemeal For House Plants

Do not put fertilizer on your house plants when they are "sick." Treat them with water or let them dry as the case might be until they show they are responding to the treatment. Then a small amount of bonemeal may be added to the soil, say about a teaspoonful to a five or six-inch pot. The treatment may be continued about every 30 days. The bonemeal, of course, will not give immediate results; it takes about six to eight weeks for it to get in the good work, but it is by far the safest way. Nitrate of soda may be used but it should be diluted. Use about a tablespoonful to three gallons of water and use only a tablespoonful of the solution to a plant at first. After you have done this several times at about three weeks intervals, you will soon find out whether to use more or less.

There are a good many plants that grow in the house and seem to give good results without any attention at all. That, however, is no reason why we should not feed them and give them enough water. Commercial fertilizers are very reasonable these days and we can buy them in small enough quantities to warrant feeding the plants.

Feed Worms to Goldfish

By watering as I suggested, any angleworms in the soil will generally come to the surface. They like a moist soil but not one that the water is in excess. Pick these worms off the top and take them out to your goldfish. I am not sure that the angleworms have a high nitrogen content or that the goldfish require nitrogen, but I do know that they like angleworms. Try feeding them some time. Speaking of water, it is a good plan to take your plants out into the yard now and then and spray them with a fine spray.

Stop Getting Up Nights

Lax the Bladder With Juniper Oil, Buchu, Etc.

Drive out the impurities and excess acids that cause irritation, burning and frequent desire. Juniper oil is pleasant to take in the form of BUKETS, the bladder laxative, also containing Buchu leaves, etc. Works on the bladder similar to castor oil on the bowels. Get a 25c box from any drug store. After four days if not relieved of "getting up nights" go back and get your money. If you are bothered with backache or leg pains caused from bladder disorders, you are bound to feel better after this cleansing and you get your regular sleep. DOLLEY DRUG CO. says BUKETS is a best seller.—Adv.

County Board Aids Midwinter Poultry Show

Allots $1500 For Annual Display At Pasadena to Advertise Resources

To further advertise the resources of Los Angeles county, the board of supervisors today allocated $1500 to the Pasadena Poultry Association, assuring the Midwinter Poultry, Pigeon and Rabbit show to be held there January 4 to 7, 1934.

Tentative agreement to and the annual show to this extent was given by the county officials last October 3, but it was not until today that the agreement was actually signed. Poultrymen from all over the county will exhibit. Poultrymen throughout the county also noted with satisfaction today that the board of supervisors had approved the allocation of $1000 for poultry disease investigation work in the county. The matter had been under consideration for more than 10 days.

Request for the allocation was made by Dr. L. M. Hurt, county livestock inspector, who reminded the county officials that the county had an agreement with the state for payment of this amount for the work. Allocation was made no motion of Supervisor Hugh A. Thatcher.

SLEEPER PAYS FINE IN JUSTICE COURT

Peter Stuytitz, who gave a Los Angeles address, was arrested Monday morning by Constable Charles R. Taber, who found him sleeping in his car in front of 1855 Lomita boulevard, where he had been since the night before. Stuytitz paid a fine of $25 in the Lomita township justice court on a charge of violating a county ordinance.
